HSV can manifest as three different types of infections in neonates: involvement limited to the skin, eyes, or mouth, central nervous system, and disseminated multiorgan infections.